

Public Notice

Eric's Main Street Mobil/BP Service Station

Flemington Borough, Hunterdon County

October 2008

Purpose Of This Notice

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP) is issuing a Draft Decision Document Report. The report identifies the remedial alternatives planned to address soil and ground water contamination at the Eric's Main Street Mobil/BP Service Station site located at 144 Main Street in Flemington. Discharges at the station resulted in the presence of gasoline-related contamination above applicable remediation standards in the tank area and the ground water beneath the site.

Using information gathered from the Remedial Investigation and Remedial Action Selection Evaluation, NJDEP identified and evaluated viable remedial approaches to address the soil and ground water contamination. Based on the evaluation of the viable remedial approaches against the remedial action criteria, Underground Storage Tank and Piping System Removal, Soil Excavation and Off-site Disposal is the preferred remedial approach for the on-site soils. Long-term Monitoring with Institutional Controls/Classification Exception Area Establishment is the preferred remedial approach for the ground water contamination. Detailed discussion of the preferred remedial approaches are presented in the Decision Document.
